

Dr Manu K. Nayar is a Consultant Gastroenterologist and Pancreaticobiliary physician and the Director of Endoscopy at the Freeman Hospital in Newcastle upon Tyne. He leads and manages one of the largest tertiary referral centers in the U.K. and works privately at the Nuffield hospital, Newcastle upon Tyne and the Spire hospital in Washington, U.K.

He specializes in the management and treatment of all forms of gastroenterological diseases including indigestion/heartburn, irritable bowel syndrome, inflammatory bowel disease and liver disease. He is fully competent in all forms of endoscopy including gastroscopy, flexible sigmoidoscopy, and colonoscopy. In addition, he is one of a handful of pancreaticobiliary physicians in the UK who subspecializes in the medical and endoscopic treatment of diseases of the pancreas and bile duct.